COUNTY APPOINTMENTS

GEO. W. BAKER CLERK TO THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Directors of the Poor Make a Number of Appointments at the County Home.

The organization of the new Board of Co. Commissioners and just what they were going to do, has been the political talk for several weeks. Commissioners K. H. Lupp, Wm. Linn, and Walter Snyder met on Monday morning, making Mr. Lupp President and Mr. Linn Secretary. The Board kept those on the outside guessing until they announced that George W. Baker of Abbottstown, had been elected their clerk. Mr. Baker had served four years as clerk to the County Commissioners from 1912 to 1916, and is familiar with the details of the office and has since been with the J. A. Thompson Company of Harrisburg handling county office supplies and will bring to the office his extended experience. The Commissioners fixed the salary at $2400 a year, and without any extras. The $2400 salary has been recognized as so inadequate for the great mass of clerical work of the office that extras have been tacked on here and there until the extras often looked as large as the regular stipend.

J. Donald Swope, Esq., was elected County Solicitor and salary fixed at $500. Dewey Wolf, of Straban township, son-in-law of Commissioner Snyder, was elected Sealer of Weights and Measures. Joseph Galbraith, the old janitor, received the appointment of Janitor of Court House.

The retiring county officials remain as assistants to the new county officers. Clerk of the Court J. R. Hartman retaining W. D. Sheely, Register and Recorder Horace Smiley retaining Chas. W. Gardner. County Treasurer Zinn retaining Leo Bushman, who had been the assistant of former Treasurer Brady Sefton. Sheriff John W. Hartman deputized J. Howard Hartman as Deputy Sheriff, and Prothonotary Roth succeeds himself. The new Board of Directors of the Poor of the county composed of P. P. Eisenhart, J. Edward Hall and Edward Benner, organized by electing P. P. Eisenhart, the old member, President; Arthur E. Roth was elected Secretary, Dr. E. H. Markley, Treasurer; Robert E. Wible, Esq., Attorney, and Harry T. Stouffer, Steward, and Dr. J. P. Dalbey, Physician. The remaining appointments at County Home were postponed until the next meeting.

The County Auditors, M. E. Freed, H. B. Beard and George M. Deatrick organized by electing Mr. Freed President, and Mr. Beard, Secretary, and J. L. Williams, Attorney. Their first duty was to meet with the County Commissioners and fix the compensation of the County Treasurer. This has been two and a half per cent. By reason of bond issues in the near future, the commission fixed at two and a half per cent. on all sums beyond. Norman J. King, the Sealer of weights and measures handed his resignation to the County Commissioners after appointments had been made and it was accepted to take effect April 1, 1920.

Lightner of the third ward. Chas. B. Dougherty was elected President of the Town Council for the next two years.

Philip R. Bickle was re-elected Treasurer at a salary of $150, and C. B. Kitzmiller Secretary at salary of $75. The only applicants for policemen were by Andrew Weikert and C. A. Fox and they were re-elected for year at salary of $70 for Chief Weikert and $65 for Fox. Charles Moose was elected Janitor of Engine House over Charles Swope by vote of 5 to 4 with salary of $15 a month. During market season he will be Market Master with additional pay of $10 a month.

Charles Swope was reappointed Fire Marshall at salary of 40 cents an hour while attending to his duties. The street and sewer supervisor will not be chosen until Monday, Jan. 19. There are three applications for supervisor of streets, Edward Newman, Daniel Hankey and C. W. Culp, Sr.

And Adams county's increase is the same as the increase in York, Cumberland and Franklin counties.

PIONEER MINISTER DIES

DR. VAN ORSDEL, A NATIVE OF ADAMS COUNTY.

Nevin M. Dicks, of New Oxford, Stricken—Peter Keady, Pres. of Fairfield Nat. Bank at Age of 81.

Rev. William Wesley Van Orsdel, and known to Methodism of the country as "Brother Van," one of the big pioneers of the church in the West, died on Dec. 19 at Great Falls, Mont. He was a son of William and Mary Osborn Van Orsdel and was born on the old Van Orsdel farm near Hunterstown. In 1872 he went to Montana in evangelistic work for the Methodist Church and for forty-seven years he has devoted himself to the upbuilding of his church in that State. There are one hundred churches in Montana built by him, and about fifty parsonages, besides six hospitals and two large institutions of learning. He won his way when Montana was slowly developing with a rough element in her borders, to whom he was an "old scout who played fair." He delighted to tell a story on himself when once held up by highwaymen and when the robber reached him "Brother Van" protested, "You wouldn't rob a Methodist preacher would you?" And he was asked, "Are you a preacher?" to which he replied, "Yes, and a mighty poor one too, but but you would not rob me, would you?" and the robber answered, "No! Take your hands down! I'm a Methodist myself." "Brother Van" had a smile that was infectious. The Epworth Herald says of this native that he was an apostle, an evangelist, a pioneer, a master-builder, an advance agent of the best there is in civilization. In his last illness a large crowd of children at one of the Deaconess hospitals he built, traveled over 100 miles to sing to him. He never married. He leaves one brother, Fletcher Van Orsdel, of Great Falls, Mont. He visited Gettysburg in 1913.

Nevin M. Dicks, one of the progressive business men of New Oxford, died on last Friday from a stroke. He was stricken suddenly last Thursday evening and never regained consciousness. He was in his 83rd year. He was a son of the late Robert Dicks, of Reading township, and grew to manhood in this county. He spent a number of years in Baltimore, and returned to New Oxford four or five years ago, opening up a restaurant. This proved so successful that last summer he bought the Eagle Hotel and remodeled it to be operated as a first class restaurant, making an attractive place on the Square in that place, with every promise that New Oxford was to be on the new Lincoln Way map for accommodations. The improvements were nearly finished at time of his death. The funeral was held on Monday with services by Rev. W. M. Allison of the Lutheran Church, and interment in the New Oxford Cemetery. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Minnie D. Myers, a son and a daughter, Harper Dicks, of Baltimore, and Gladys Dicks at home.

David Hoover, a retired farmer, died Sunday morning at the family residence in East Berlin, aged 69 years, 4 months and 13 days. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hoover, of near New Chester. He leaves his wife, who was Miss Lydia Raffensperger, and two sisters, Mrs. Emma Gable, of New Oxford; and Mrs. Amos Guise, of near East Berlin, and two brothers, Samuel Hoover, of New Oxford, and John Hoover, of near East Berlin. The funeral was on Tuesday in the New Chester Church by Rev. Bixler, and interment in the New Chester Cemetery.

Louis Hoffheins, a native of East Berlin, committed suicide in the cellar of his Philadelphia home on Thursday morning of last week. He had been in poor health and was depressed over the sudden death of his daughter Mattie, in York, some months ago. He had been in the carriage trimming business and retired four years ago. He left East Berlin about 25 years ago going to York and moved to Philadelphia three years ago. He leaves a wife and one son, Harry Hoffheins, of York.

Martin Flohr, of Washington, D. C., who was born in Liberty township at Fountandale 52 years ago, was buried at Rock Ridge on last Thursday. Mr. Flohr taught school in Liberty township over 25 years ago, died on Monday in the Emergency Hospital, Washington, after being operated upon for a goiter. Besides his wife and two children, Mrs. Charles Nay and Carroll Flohr, of Washington, he is survived by his father, J. R. Flohr, of Waynesboro; four brothers, Charles G. Flohr and Simon P. Flohr, of Fountandale; Jesse E. Flohr, of Dearfield, Md.; and L. B. Flohr, of Vienna, Va.; four sisters, Mrs. Jennie Gantz, of Fountandale; Mrs. Annie Blickenstaff, of Baltimore; Mrs. Fannie Gantz and Mrs. Dean Gonder, of Waynesboro.

VOTE FOR STREET BOND ISSUE.

It would be interesting to know whether any resident of Gettysburg has any good reason why he proposes not to vote for the bond issue for paved streets on Feb. 3. The proposed bond issue is not needed for the Lincoln Highway, on Chambersburg and York streets, but will be needed for the building of the proposed National Highway on Baltimore and Carlisle streets. Gettysburg is most fortunate in being at the crossing of these two great highways of the future and in having a friend in the State Highway Commissioner Sadler who desires to be just to this community with a national traffic by offering to build both these highways through the town to a width of 18 feet. All that is asked of the Gettysburg people is to complete the job on either side from curb to curb. It is an offer our people should jump at with a big majority. It is most unlikely that the State will build unless we do our part. The co-operative action of our people is wanted. If we do not avail ourselves of this opportunity, it may be years before it will come again. The one cry of our people for years has been the awful condition of our streets and the constant waste in repair. The bumpy streets greet the traveler along every line of the way into town, damming the community for their maintenance. They are dusty and an awful penalty of having the health of the town impaired thereby hangs over the town. Money has been poured on the streets like water annually to little purpose. The money annually spent would represent an interest charge on several times the amount of the proposed bond issue. The street proposed to be put down is as permanent as far as experience has gone. A roadway of the same character near Harrisburg after seven years shows no wear and has practically had no repair charge. The proposition involves not only the four main streets but every street, for there will be material to put in good shape all our streets.

Let us tell the Highway Department that we know a good thing when offered and vote for the bond issue.

THERE IS HOPE.

It is a hopeful sign when Everett Colby, of New Jersey, a member of the Republican Platform Committee by appointment of Will Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said:

"That the Republican party should find itself without a foreign policy at this period of the world's history and be at the mercy of the idiotic leadership with which it is now inflected is nothing less than a calamity."

"When the Republican leaders in Congress appear more interested in an investigation of the President's wash bill while in Paris than in the most important problem the world has ever faced, it is high time either to change leadership or to serve notice upon them that they were sent to Washington to carry out a definite party policy and not vent their spleen upon individuals, however much they may be in disagreement with the President or anybody else."

Let us hope for a Treaty of Peace and a League of Nations.

The Barker Luck

By A. W. PEACH

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Rose Barker faced the issue bravely as she had faced other difficult problems in days past. Without any particular ability except willingness to work hard, she had won her way into the good will of the great real estate firm, and was about to enter on the new duties of the position, when the grave but kindly faced physician had told her the cause of the harassing pain in her side, and ended with a statement that involved the word "operation."

On the evening that the verdict had been given, her faithful and unobtrusive lover, Elmer Horton, who had worked in her old office came to see her; and before she realized what he was doing, in his quiet way he had drawn from her some of her fears and doubts. The steadfast love in his eyes—and they were not handsome eyes—may have been the cause.

"It's the Barker luck, Elmer," she said, smiling bravely. "Alone in this big, big world—"

"You forget me," he broke in, his steady eyes twinkling.

She choked an instinctive desire to hug him. "You old dear, how faithful and kind you have been to me; and you know I never can love you."

"Perhaps," he answered, smiling at her mood.

"Ah, I wonder!" Then her smile twisted a bit. "Well, I must have it done; but the money end of it—I'm poor as Job's turkey—was it Job's turkey? Hold on!" Her chin was quivering, but her eyes were smiling. "I have one thousand dollars after all. Did you know that?"

He professed great astonishment.

"Some one did love me enough to give me one thousand dollars." She hunted through an old wallet that evidently contained cherished treasures, and drew out a crumpled check. "You remember old Mr. Pruitt—"

"Do? He used to sit and ramble on by the hour with you while I was only asking for five minutes to make love to you."

She shook her head warningly. "None of that. Well, I did try to be good to him. He was a little out of his head, you know. Just before his last sickness he came in and gave me this check with a great flourish. You know he always talked of having money. I'm glad he thought he had. Poor old tender-hearted man, the landlady told me the city had to bury him at its own expense." Her eyes shadowed.

He took the check quickly. The writing was so erratic that it hardly made sense. Clearly enough, it was the vacancy of an unbalanced mind, yet it did represent a pleasant memory; and Horton sought to divert her mind from the last thought she had spoken. "She sensed his effort, however, and smiled back. "Elmer, it's the Barker luck; and I'm going to face it in the way father and mother did. Tomorrow I go to the hospital, I am going to let them do as they want to with me; and afterward—why, afterward—"

She looked at him, with stricken eyes. "She knew that weeks must pass after the operation before she would be strong enough to take up work once more; and where was the money coming from to enable her to live as she should and grow strong during those weeks?"

He took up the check in desperate fingers, stirred by the look in her eyes. "Say, Rose, endorse this check; and I'll try to get it through. Perhaps the old chap did have this money!"

"What are you thinking about? That check is some old thing he had around. See how yellow it is! He was a little crazy. No, don't be foolish."

He held his fountain pen toward her. "Indorse here, please," he said, directly.

"All right, sir," she assented, making a name of it.

He folded the check and placed it carefully in his pocket. Then he looked at her hungrily. "Rose, is there anything I can do?"

"Please don't look at me that way."

She rose, her face white. "You have been so good to me, so faithful and kind—I wish I could reward you. He had risen, and she put her hands on his shoulders and looked into his eyes.

"But I can't give you anything except my thanks. You might—send me a few flowers—if—good-by!"

His big heart could not speak through his slow mind. He said awkwardly: "I'll remember. And Rose, remember that the Barker luck may take a turn. You know the old saying modernized—'It's a long lane that has no ashbarrel!' So buck-up—and be of good cheer! Good-by!"

She smiled at his "modernized saying," because she knew he wished her to; but after he had gone she stood long in silence, and realizing as she never had before that the man who had gone carried with him a soul that, like gold, would wear brighter with the years.

When she awoke into a pain-filled, ether-scented world, the first glance of her, sick eyes fell upon the flowers—his gift. The sight held and checked her sinking soul. She drifted away to sleep, anchored to a love that would not let her go.

When again she awoke, the smiling nurse said to her: "Here in a short note which I was told must be given you just as soon as possible. Would you like it now?"

Her blurred eyes read: "Dear Rose Bee—Your luck has turned. I took the check to a bank; they put it through for me; and the money came back! Old Pruitt must have known his time was short, and thinking of your kindness to him in an unkind world, gave you all he had. He loved you. So do I, Elmer." And in a smaller envelope she found bills that totaled $500, and a note: "The rest you can have when you want it. I kept it in the bank."

The noises of her tumbling world died away into peace. It was the old man's gift, and there was nothing to do but accept it. It meant weeks in the country, strength regained, a new desire to live.

She secured a private room, special care, and spent two weeks in the hospital. Just once, Elmer came to see her. She found his quiet, whimsical ways very restful and enjoyable, and she asked him to come again. He failed to appear, sending a brief note that he could not get away from his work again; and then she remembered how pale and tired he looked. The thought worried her, his failure to come annoyed her, and in both failure and annoyance she made a new discovery of how much the awkward, big-hearted friend meant to her.

She went back to a village in the hills, and there began to regain rapidly the strength she needed for her work. Only one thing marred the happy days—the money he had sent her was about gone—surgeon's, nurse's, and the hospital bills had mounted up more rapidly than she thought, she reasoned; so she wrote him.

Mr. Stafford, in whose family she was staying, happened to be going to the city, and he volunteered to take the note in to Elmer.

Her first surprise came in the evening, when she was called into the front room of the house and found Elmer waiting. She went to him gladly, instinctively, and then paused, the thrill in her heart dying. She wanted to put her arms around his neck and tell him just how much he had been to her, but the look on his face arrested her. The same old hungry look of love was in his eyes, but his haggard face was lined and changed.

"Rose Bee, I have come to make a confession," he said tensely. "I didn't—er—there is no money."

"What—what—what do you mean?"

"There isn't any more money," he repeated, desperately. "I knew the check was no good; I didn't have the courage to take it to the bank. I borrowed from the firm—and—and I worked night and day to raise the rest and pay back some I borrowed. I knew you wouldn't take it—so I thought of this scheme of making believe the check was good. I—I—had to tell you. I couldn't get hold of any money to send you. Do you—have me for a?"

From astonishment, amazement, to tender understanding she went as she listened. At his last foolish question he laid her face against his shoulder and drew his arms about her. "Hate you, my dear, great-hearted girl," she said gently, "why, let me tell you what I have been learning these weeks—I love you!"

"Rose Bee!"

A hoarse cough broke the spell. Mr. Stafford stood in the doorway. "Say, if you young folks will forgive me, I want to tell you something. I talked with Horton, and he told me the story of the check. I'm a curious old cuss, and just for the fun of it, I guess I could understand how Pruitt loved this girl—I guess you do, too. Horton—I had my bankers telephone to that country bank the check was on, while I was in the city; and I just got home and I had to give you the news—that check just covers the balance old Pruitt had in his country bank! Elmer should have tried to cash it, but I guess everything is all right now!"

Elmer looked at Rose Bee, and Rose Bee looked at Elmer, in the immortal speech of heart to heart; and then, as she kissed him, she announced, smiling through the mist in her eyes:

"Dear, the Barker luck has busted!"

The Mesa Verde region, writes Arthur Chapman, has many attractions besides its ruins. It is a land of weird beauty. The canyons which seam the mesa, and all of which lead toward the distant Manos river, are in many cases, replicas of the Grand Canon of the Colorado. Little horse-back riding can be done.

It is a country of active foot work, just as it was in the days of cliff dwellers themselves. But when one has spent a few days among the cedars and jack pines of the Mesa Verde, well named "Green Table" by the Spaniards of early days, he becomes an enthusiast.

So Many Men Have Been Buying

FLANNEL SHIRTS

This winter, that we found we were not going to have enough. The prices we found were very high on shirts having any sort of real worth. One of our factories, however, offered us some of their salesmen's samples, and we bought 100 of them. These goods would have sold from $2.75 to $6.00 if bought in the regular way. There are only two or three shirts of a kind, khaki, blue, red, gray, brown, etc., and we have sorted them into three lots—$2.48, $2.98, $3.48—for quick sale. All sizes, 14 1-2 to 16 1-2. The earlier you come, the better the picking.

DELIVERING AIRPLANE EGGS FROM THE AIR

Larry B. Jahn of Montevideo, Minn., helped make it easier on Uncle Sam's air mail carriers. He invented this parachute with which eggs have been delivered from 800 feet in the air while the plane was in motion—and without scrambling them. The parachute was first used during the war as "safers" for airmen. It automatically leaves its case and opens when released.

LAST HOME OF SEMINOLES

Indians to Whom High Tribute Has Been Paid Have Been Removed to Reservation.

Now that the state of Florida has gathered the Seminole Indians together and placed them on a definite reservation in one corner of the Everglades, that remarkable tribe attracts passing attention. For many years they have inhabited the Everglades, and been undisputed masters, beyond the outskirts of that region of swamp and jungle, of some 800 square miles of country which no white traveler has ever penetrated. Few whites have known the Seminoles at all, and perhaps none better than Mrs. Minnie Moore Wilson, who was recently interviewed for a New York paper. "The Seminole brave," she said, "is the most upright man in the world. He is altogether moral, and never lies, cheats, steals or breaks his word. While his wonderful squaw holds a rank in her family and community undivided among all the women of earth." A race could hardly be more highly spoken of; and the Seminoles themselves, says Mrs. Wilson, dread contact with American civilization, lest it destroy their own standards of conduct. One cannot but sympathize with them when seeing the engineers surveying their wilderness.—Christian Science Monitor.

Semi-Annual Clearance For INVENTORY

Ladies Coats and Suits Furs, Skirts and Dresses

Prices reduced from a rising market that have been under the market right along

Furs, Suits & Coats were advertised to sell at $100.00 and over in many stores but not in ours—although we had the $100.00 kind and over. We refused to sell goods at these exorbitant figures—it cost us profits that we should have had, but it established us more firmly in the minds of those who could or would have paid us the higher prices. We have gone through our stock several times in the past month or six weeks and made some drastic cuts in prices—but in order to make a quicker get-away with stock reduction we are going to offer an additional 10 per cent. discount on all Furs, Coats, Suits, Skirts and Dresses—that is 10 per cent. less than the former marked down price—which means that you can buy these goods on a rising market—at the discount of ten per cent on a mark down sale. As-tounding—when there is no possible indication that prices will remain in first hands as low as they are today—but—we are merchants, not speculators.

This sale includes every garment from Tot size up—but does not include entire stock of Silk & Lingerie Waists—or any other entire stock—but every stock in the Ready-to-Wear department will contribute many items to the general clearance sale.

Bees Took Carload of Sugar.

Near the station of Fontainebleau, France, a carload of crystallized sugar was held up and within four days the entire load had disappeared in spite of the guards.

Not far from the station of Avon there are large bee farms, and while the bees covered the car in swarms no one supposed that they could carry away the crystallized sugar. Nor could they. But industriously and ingeniously they betook themselves to nearby basins and fountains and carried drops of water to melt the sugar! The dampened sugar formed a syrup that was easily transported to the hives.

Australia's Pride in Warships.

The commonwealth is proud of its warships and particularly of its battle cruiser which saved Sydney and Melbourne from bombardment at the outbreak of the war. The Australian Arts club has shown its pride in a practical way by presenting a selection of paintings, drawings and etchings to the ward room of H. M. A. S. Australia. All the gifts were the work of members of the club, which included some of the leading artists of the commonwealth. In return, Commodore Dumaresq entertained the committee of the club at luncheon on the battle cruiser, which has been stationed in Farm Cove, Sydney harbor, since its return from the North sea.

Expenses Low in Australia.

It is hard to imagine in this country, but, according to Mark Sheldon, Australian trade representative, his country is in a class by itself, so far as the cost of living is concerned.

Living costs have increased but 20 per cent, and a four-room cottage rents for from $20 to $25 a month. There is no I. W. W. and employers and labor unions are forced by law to arbitrate.

There is no new tax to pay the war debt, and the country has three crops of wheat to put on the market, according to Mr. Sheldon. Soldiers are paid $10 a week by the government until they secure jobs.
